

Wolters Kluwer's FRB eAsset pledge support program

US Depository institutions are collateralizing in excess of $5 trillion in pledged loan value to the Federal Reserve Banks (FRB) and primary sources of liquidity annually. With the growth in electronic assets (eAssets), banks and credit unions depend on the eOriginal® eAsset Management solution to help leverage these electronically originated lending agreements in their monetization strategies, including their use as pledged collateral.

The FRB is expanding programs to accept eAssets, however, the program requires an eAsset management certification to ensure the FRB can enforce their security interests. Navigating the process, interpreting the requirements, and articulating the nuances of eAsset management for security interest perfection can be a challenge for many organizations.

Wolters Kluwer aims to simplify this complex process with a hands-on support program specifically built for users of the eOriginal eAsset® Management solution.

We work with institutions wishing to expand their use of the FRB to support their liquidity requirements. Our program is designed to assist with understanding the FRB requirements, completing the necessary documentation, creating process guidelines for eAsset pledging, and providing insights on best practices to ensure the integrity and transferred enforceability of managed eAssets.
