Arbitration:

The International Journal of Arbitration, Mediation and Dispute Management

- Thought-leading analysis of academic and practical questions
- Diverse viewpoints from around the globe and across practice areas
- Presented by the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators, the standard setter for excellence in international alternative dispute resolution

Description

For more than 100 years, the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators (CI Arb) has set the international standard for excellence in practice and professionalism across all areas of alternative dispute resolution (ADR). Throughout the 20th and 21st Centuries, CI Arb has become an established centre for thought leadership, research, and the scholarly study of international dispute resolution.

Arbitration: The Journal of International Arbitration, Mediation, and Dispute Management (“The Journal”) is CI Arb’s internationally respected, peer reviewed, academic journal showcasing the most current analyses of pressing issues in ADR from a global perspective. Now in its 106th year of publication, The Journal has been at the forefront of the conversation as ADR has evolved, transforming from an “alternative” forum into a vital component of international legal practice and of the global rule of law.

The Journal aims to provide original in-depth investigations of both theoretical and practical questions on international arbitration and ADR. To that end, The Journal welcomes scholarly articles aiming to contribute to and advance the academic debate, as well as articles aiming to provide analysis of developments in case law, legislation, and practice in the field of dispute resolution.

The Journal covers all areas of international dispute settlement, including commercial and investment arbitration and all other modes of ADR, such as negotiation, adjudication, expert determination, and mediation. The Journal covers topics relating to both private and public law, including public international law, and welcomes articles that take a variety of approaches, including doctrinal, historical, comparative, sociolegal, philosophical, political analysis and economic analysis of the law.

The Journal is essential reading for anyone involved in dispute resolution – whether as judge, international arbitrator, party representative, mediator, adjudicator, corporate advisor, government official, in-house counsel, academic, or graduate/post-graduate student.

Each issue contains:

- Academic articles with in-depth analysis of legal developments from across international ADR disciplines, including investment arbitration, commercial arbitration, mediation, adjudication, hybrid procedures and more;
- Commentary on domestic and international cases that affect international ADR practice;
- Papers and presentations from conferences and events around the globe; and
- Reviews of the latest international ADR books and publications.

ASA Bulletin

- Detailed practical analysis from one of the world's most prestigious arbitration associations
- In-depth commentary on recent Swiss and international arbitration decisions
- Specifics of arbitral awards and orders under the Swiss Rules and other major arbitration centres

Description

The ASA Bulletin is the official quarterly journal of the Swiss Arbitration Association (ASA) which is graced by many of the world's best-known arbitration practitioners. Switzerland is generally regarded as one of the world's leading sites for arbitration proceedings. The Statistical Report of the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) has repeatedly ranked Switzerland first for place of arbitration, origin of arbitrators, and applicable law.

Since its inception in 1983, the Bulletin has carved a unique niche with its focus on arbitration case law and practice worldwide as well as its judicious selection of scholarly and practical writing in the field. Its regular contents include the following:

- articles with incisive commentary and analysis of current developments and trends in arbitration law and practice;
- leading relevant cases of the Federal Supreme Court and other Swiss courts;
- selected landmark arbitration cases from foreign jurisdictions worldwide;
- arbitral awards and orders under various auspices including ICC, ICSID, and the Swiss Chambers of Commerce ('Swiss Rules'); and
- notices of relevant publications and reviews.

Each case and article is usually published in its original language with comprehensive headnotes in English, French, and German.

The ASA Bulletin is among the most refreshing, original, and international of all arbitration reviews. It has become an indispensable reference tool for all practitioners involved in international arbitration.

Asian Dispute Review

- Essential information on all important pan-Asian arbitrations and mediations
- Summaries of cases hard to find elsewhere
- Easy-to-read non-technical style

Description

For keeping in touch with arbitration and mediation decisions rendered in all Asian countries from Turkey to Japan, Asian Dispute Review is the most timely and reliable guide. It provides all the information necessary to pursue each case in detail. It is a quarterly journal, sponsored by the Hong Kong International Arbitration Centre, the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators (East Asia Branch), the Hong Kong Institute of Arbitrators, and the Hong Kong Mediation Council. Each edition is notable for the following convenient features:

- up-to-date summaries of each important pan-Asian arbitration or mediation decided in the preceding quarter;
- about eight articles, a news section, and a book review, all with a focus on arbitration, mediation, and other forms of ADR in the Asian context; and
- a style easily understood by lay readers, with substantive law content limited to a minimum with references for further detail.

Asian Dispute Review is welcomed worldwide by lawyers, legal consultants, arbitrators, mediators, and other ADR neutrals, as well as by interested academics and people from all trades and professions who are interested in private dispute resolution.

Asian International Arbitration Journal - AIAJ

- A thought leader on issues in international commercial arbitration in the Asia-Pacific region
- In-depth articles on developments in Asian arbitration and mediation law and practice
- Analysis of recent arbitral cases and case law referring to ADR

Description

Despite the fact that Asia (and particularly East Asia) has become one of the world's fastest-growing regions for international arbitration, it is difficult for practitioners to find the requisite depth of knowledge on international arbitration in Asia. The Asian International Arbitration Journal exists to fill that gap.

Published in collaboration with the Singapore International Arbitration Centre (SIAC), each issue contains a variety of comprehensive and thought-provoking articles, including the following:

- detailed analytical commentaries on international arbitration developments and emerging trends in the region;
- insights into the latest institutional developments and regulatory changes; and
- updates on recent case law, legislative enactments, and arbitral awards throughout Asia.

Published twice yearly since 2005, this cutting-edge, practical publication has proven to be of immeasurable value to all professionals active in the field of international dispute resolution worldwide.

BCDR International Arbitration Review

- Thought-provoking articles by leading practitioners and academics in the Arab countries
- Insightful analysis and commentary on relevant case law from the region
- Important Arab country legislative and procedural documents

Description

The BCDR International Arbitration Review, the journal of the Bahrain Chamber for Dispute Resolution, is the pre-eminent journal dedicated to helping international arbitration practitioners and academics to identify and better understand trends, developments, and procedural issues relating to arbitration in the Arab world as seen from an Arab perspective.

This biannual journal, with authoritative contributions in English and Arabic, increases awareness of alternative dispute resolution mechanisms and arbitration across the Arab world, providing practitioners and academics in the Americas, Europe, and southern and eastern Asia with an insider perspective on arbitration-related developments occurring in the region. In addition, it provides a forum for practitioners and academics from and for the Arab world to comment on international arbitration in general.

Each issue focuses on a specific theme or topic that is both timely and of particular interest to the Arab region. Typical special themes include the following:

- recognition and enforcement of foreign arbitral awards in the Arab States of the Gulf;
- women's voices in international arbitration; and
- damages for delay in construction arbitration.

Subscribers will welcome the journal's thorough and comprehensive insight into how arbitration in the Arab world works in practice.

Revue de l'arbitrage

- Authoritative analysis and case law, both on French as well as on international arbitration, for specialists who prefer to consume arbitration information in French
- One of the leading arbitration law journals with critical analysis that will enable practitioners and academics to find arguments for their cases or research, with a focus on civil law
- Most comprehensive collection of French and Swiss case law that will enable arbitration specialists to find relevant precedents

Description

The Revue de l'arbitrage was created by the Comité français de l'arbitrage in 1955 and has been, since that date, the main legal journal devoted to arbitration in the French language.

Originally and until 1970, it was presented as the Bulletin d'information du Comité français de l'arbitrage, edited under the auspices of Maître Jean Robert.

This quarterly publication took on the form of a real scientific journal in 1970, when Professor Philippe Fouchard took up the duties of Editor-in-Chief. It was he who gave the journal the characteristics it still has today and which have made it, across all countries, one of the leading periodicals on the subject.

The scientific nature of the Revue de l'arbitrage entails that it only publishes articles and comments on the condition of being guaranteed exclusivity in all languages. Contributions are either spontaneously presented by their authors, or commissioned from them by the Editorial Board. Manuscripts are systematically the subject of exchanges between the author and the Editorial Board. Since 2011, a Reading Committee has been assisting the Editorial Board with the processing of manuscripts addressed to it, and a Scientific Committee has provided the Editorial Board with ideas for areas that could be covered or for new subjects that could be dealt with.

The themes are approached from different angles. Indeed, the law of arbitration is viewed critically, in the broad sense of the term, both from the aspect of general theory, but also from the angle of domestic, international and comparative law. The Revue de l'arbitrage has always taken care not to separate theoretical and practical views, because in this subject matter, more than in others, they cannot be dissociated. The authors, particularly numerous, are very diverse: French and non-French, practitioners or academics.

World Trade & Arbitration Materials

- All the most important current documents relating to international trade not readily available elsewhere
- Essential current documents relating to international arbitration as a means of settling international business disputes
- Details of the latest arbitral awards, relevant court decisions, statutes, arbitration rules, and news of arbitration centres and associations

Description

Practitioners in arbitration and trade must have timely access to current information in those fields. But the rapid and continual growth in practical and academic research in these areas makes staying current highly challenging. World Trade and Arbitration Materials meets this vital need with analysis of the latest developments in such crucial areas of trade as the following:

- anti-dumping and unfair trade practices decisions;
- pending legislation and new statutes;
- policy statements, position papers, proposals, and reports concerning trade negotiations;
- new arbitration rules and news of arbitration centres;
- reports of trade dispute settlement panels; and
- arbitral awards and court decisions.

Its coverage and currency make World Trade and Arbitration Materials an indispensable tool for those working in the field of arbitration and trade, especially those involved in research in these areas.

European Foreign Affairs Review

- Pre-eminent ongoing source of analysis of matters arising in the EU's external relations
- Definitive public forum for discussion and development of European external policy interests and strategies
- Global perspective on political and economic currents within the EU that have worldwide repercussions

Description

The European Foreign Affairs Review is a double-blind peer-reviewed journal specialising in the role of Europe in the world, and in particular its position and policies in relation to third States and international institutions. The Review focuses on the political, legal, economic, social and cultural aspects of the EU's external action. The Review functions as a multi-disciplinary medium for the understanding and analysis of the external relations of the European Union. It primarily publishes solid, original, and research-based academic articles, but it also seeks to be a forum for an exchange of views from practice. Contributions by early-career scholars are welcome.

The Review aims at meeting the needs of both the academic and the practitioner (government officials throughout the world dealing with EU matters, parliamentarians, EU officials, officials of international organizations, executives of multinational corporations, specialized journalists and policy-makers in general).

Authors should ensure that their contributions will be understandable also to readers outside their specific field of expertise.

European Public Law

- Stay abreast of the ever-changing life patterns that come under the ambit of public law
- Major quarterly stocktaking of developments in administrative law across EU Member States
- Expert analysis of how Member States interpret EU public law

Description

Taking the broad view that public law is comprised of aspects of (for instance) human rights, liability, public procurement, provision of public services, social media, and privacy – areas that link legal control to governmental purposes – this established and much-praised journal examines the emergence of European public law from EU law (and its EC and EEC antecedents) and the European Convention on Human Rights and analyses the interface of these with Member State systems. In short, the journal embraces the operation and control of government and government agencies, regulation of economic and commercial affairs, and relationships between the state and individuals.

In a thematic and analytical manner, articles cover the following topics and much more:

- openness, transparency, and access to information;
- prognostications concerning Brexit;
- public-private partnerships;
- citizenship and protection of human rights;
- redress of grievance through ombudsmen and administrative bodies;
- fiscal and monetary policy;
- competition, regulation, public service, and the market; and
- access to justice in the light of austerity and government cuts in public expenditure.

Authorities in the field investigate the extent to which the separate systems of public law in each Member State are, notwithstanding their distinct historical and cultural backgrounds, developing a European Public Law in tandem with the law of the European Union Treaty. Academics and students will be rewarded by the detailed analysis of the context in which national laws and European laws interact. Practitioners throughout Europe and globally will gain invaluable insight into the laws they use to resolve practical questions of legal interpretation.

European Review of Private Law

- Trusted platform for debate on the desirability of a unified private law in Europe
- Hugely valuable source of information for lawyers looking for new ideas in developing strategies in private law
- Major source for researching comparative case law across Europe in all areas of private law

Description

This vibrant journal has not lost a beat in its up-to-the-minute commentary and analysis on the enormous ongoing growth in European cross-border legal work. Its appeal crosses the academic/practitioner divide by providing accessible and comparative surveys of legal developments in a number of countries, with summaries of articles and case notes in French, German, and English.

The articles cover the following topics and much more:

- great practical as well as academic importance of national private laws in an integrating Europe;
- legal developments within a broad European perspective;
- mainly comparative case law, but also work focusing on one jurisdiction alone if it has a strong cross-border interest;
- debate on the desirability of a unified private law in Europe, as a complement to economic, monetary and political union; and
- the area of patrimonial law.

Providing a forum which facilitates the development of European private law, the European Review of Private Law has proven to be of great interest to academics and practitioners across European boundaries.

Journal of World Trade

- Pre-eminent source of authoritative information on the most crucial issues affecting world trade today
- Provides both penetrating insights and practical measures related to trade negotiations at every level
- Deeply informed, authoritative, and creative consideration of the various trends in world trade

Description

Far and away the most thought-provoking and informative journal in its field, the Journal of World Trade sets the agenda for both scholarship and policy initiatives in this most critical area of international relations. It is the only journal which deals authoritatively with the most crucial issues affecting world trade today.

With penetrating, in-depth analysis, the Journal examines the relationship between the separate and interconnected regional and global integration processes stemming from today's challenging multilateral trading structure, including analysis of the following:

- the operation of the North American Free Trade Agreement;
- the expansion of the European integration process;
- the ongoing development of the World Trade Organization;
- the constant evolution of the international trading system;
- changes in production and distribution technologies; and
- demands for progress in the sphere of social welfare.

The Journal of World Trade fills a great need in global trade regulation, focusing on multilateral, regional, and bilateral trade negotiations, on various anti-dumping and unfair trade practices controversies, and on the endless succession of vital new issues that arise constantly in this turbulent field of activity. The approach is consistently multidisciplinary.

Scholars, government officials, and negotiators turn to the Journal of World Trade when they seek to expose groundbreaking theses, to make important policy statements, to offer in-depth analysis and discussion of delicate trade issues.

Air & Space Law

- Authoritative commentary and analysis on the latest developments in all air and space-related matters
- Most complete annually updated bibliography available on air and space law
- Thorough up-to-date coverage of accident and liability cases and investigations

Description

Air and Space Law provides a peer-reviewed forum for practitioners, regulators, policymakers and academics who deal with international, regional and national aviation and space law and policy.

The Journal covers public, private, criminal, regulatory, competition (antitrust) and commercial aspects of air law and policy, and regulatory, commercial and security aspects of space law and policy.

By presenting governmental, commercial and academic perspectives, Air and Space Law provides comprehensive articles that discuss and clarify crucial issues concerning, among other topics:

- deregulation and the liberalisation of air services;
- access to the air transport market, including nationality requirements for airlines;
- competition (antitrust) law and State aid;
- safety regulation, and enforcement thereof;
- accident and incident investigation;
- criminal air law, and the treatment of unruly passengers;
- second- and third-party liability in case of aviation accidents, including passenger protection (EU Regulation 261) and insurance thereof;
- product liability in aviation cases;
- access to airports, with special reference to slot allocation and airport charges;
- leasing and financing of aircraft;
- air traffic management, including the protection of the environment;
- emerging technology areas in the aviation and space industries;
- sustainability of space activities;
- space applications (earth observation, telecommunications, navigation);
- environmental aspects of space activities;
- space traffic management and space situational awareness;
- liability for damage caused by space objects;
- national space legislation;
- militarisation and weaponisation of outer space; and
- commercial uses of outer space, such as on-orbit servicing, the use of space resources, or large constellations.

The Journal's five annual issues regularly include notes on recent cases, news and updates on competition law, and book reviews. From time to time a special issue on a particular subject is published, for example the special issue on the COVID-19 pandemic in 2020, or the one of Brexit in 2021.

With a subscription to Air and Space Law, practitioners, regulators, policymakers, and academics will enjoy a regular up-to-date commentary and analysis of trends and developments in this field.
