Legal SmartDocuments is a structured work environment that enables law firms to professionally create and manage contract templates and clauses, forms, legal briefs and other documents, based on MS Word in Windows.

Provide junior associates, paralegals and clients with a platform that automatically generates contracts and other legal documents, using contract language and clauses you certify. With Legal SmartDocuments, you can create a common knowledge database for the firm, boost productivity and adopt new business models that can make your firm more competitive. With Legal SmartDocuments, even the most complex legal documents can be generated automatically and with ease using the logic you set up in the questionnaires. All users have to do is answer the relevant questions and export a complete document, based on your legal expertise. By standardising contract language, clauses and design used in each template, you can provide the firm with contracts and legal documents quickly, “certified” by you. You can confidently delegate work, improving the firm’s utilisation and realisation rates, giving you more time to concentrate on higher-value tasks that drive revenue growth.

Legal SmartDocuments is a secure, cloud product that you can start using right away on it’s own or integrated with a database (e.g. your practice management software) for easy data retrieval. The best part? You do not need any IT expertise whatsoever. Legal SmartDocuments is user-friendly and based on Microsoft Word, therefore requires no additional programming knowledge. To help you create your own document templates, we recommend a short training session with our experienced staff. With support from our software experts, we ensure projects are completed quickly - a win for your entire organisation! A typical scenario: A lawyer specialising in corporate law has to create a high volume of contracts and legal documents for every type of case. With many routine documents to create, the lawyer will manually edit the latest version of the document, which may not include important clauses. Most of the time, the lawyer has a few different files open, to painstakingly copy and paste client, counterparty and court details, contract details and clauses, as well as corporate identity (letterhead) from one file to another. The finished document is stored on the lawyer's computer, hidden from other lawyers at the firm that could benefit from the knowledge. With the burden to create documents manually on his shoulders, he is unable to dedicate time to more valuable work. With Legal SmartDocuments, creating contracts and legal documents is more efficient. Lawyers can create and update Word-based templates and clauses when needed to create accurate contracts and documents quicker, while creating a common knowledge database for the firm. Associates or paralegals can draft standard documents for different clients quickly and accurately, freeing you to work on non-standard matters or higher-value work. Moreover, you can provide your clients with an easy to use "self-service" portal to request standard legal documents. Guided by a questionnaire, Legal SmartDocuments collects the relevant information from your client and plugs it into your template, automatically creating a draft that you can review and/or send to the client immediately. We provide the technology and you provide the legal expertise. By optimising your time, you can deliver distinctive client service and increase profits.
