1. Introduction

The International Encyclopaedia of Laws (IEL) is a series of twenty five individual Encyclopaedias, each of which is devoted to a major field of law. Each Encyclopaedia contains monographs from countries all over the world, as well as from some of the world's leading international organizations. The Encyclopaedia's aim is to provide students, scholars, lecturers, teachers and other professionals who deal with international or comparative law with insight and background information. The Encyclopaedia facilitates a comparative study by quick and easy (cross-)reference. Its aim is to respond to the growing need for the harmonization of legal standards in the international community and to assist national and international organizations in their research.

These guidelines provide details about the general IEL outline, preparing your manuscript for submission, the electronic submission process, the proof correction process, and updating a published manuscript. When these guidelines are followed, we can ensure a rapid and problem-free production of your monograph, and we will be able to publish your contribution based on an outstanding manuscript.

2. Editorial tool

All IEL monographs are written and updated in word-files in our editorial tool PublishOne. The publisher will send you an email to activate your account for this system and you can set your password. When you login, you will find a word-file available for you with the outline of your Encyclopaedia. You can simply work on this word-file in the tool and save your changes there (though there will also be an option to work offline). Once the monograph is ready, you submit it "to Editor" so that the editor can review the work.

Instructions for using PublishOne can be found here, please go over these carefully before you start working in the tool.

If you need any support with the system you can contact: P1\_adminsupport@newgen.co

3. The Outline of the Encyclopaedia

All of the individual Encyclopaedias follow the same structure outlined below. Each monograph contains (historical) background information of the country it addresses, an introduction to the legal framework of that particular country, and detailed analyses of the relevant legislation. A detailed outline has been designed for each Encyclopaedia, which should be used while preparing the manuscript. These are available via <https://ielaws.com/index.php/outlines/>.

The Encyclopaedias are designed as a comparative tool for academic research to facilitate a comparison between jurisdictions. Therefore, following the outline as closely as possible is essential. The Parts and main chapters should be followed. If the subject is not relevant in your jurisdiction, please add 'Not applicable in this jurisdiction' and if possible please follow up with a short explanation. If you feel that certain topics are important and missing in the outline, they can be added as sub- chapters or additional chapters at the end.

3.1 Title Page

The title page of each monograph begins with the IEL series name and the name of the relevant country or organization. Below the name of the country your name is mentioned with your title(s) and professional occupation. To make it immediately obvious to the reader how recently your monograph has been updated, place a sentence below your name stating:

This monograph is up-to-date as of [Month Year].

3.2 The Author

The title page is followed by a page containing a photo and biographical description of the author(s). The short biography is written in the third person singular and contains the date and place of birth, place of study, date and place of graduation, past major professional occupations, and current occupation.

Submit a high-resolution digital photo along with your manuscript that will be printed next to your biography. The file should be a .jpg or .tif with a resolution of at least 600 dpi. Use your full name as the filename for the digital photo. Photos that you copy from the internet are unacceptable because the resolution is too low for print.

3.3 Table of Contents

The table of contents is placed directly after the page containing the author's biographical description. The ToC will be created by the production team once the monograph has been finalized

3.4 List of Abbreviations

The table of contents is followed by a list of abbreviations. This list should contain the abbreviations that are most commonly used in the main text. There is no need to insert generally accepted or known abbreviations. Abbreviations are to be listed in alphabetical order without the use of full stops, for example:

EU	European Union
US	United States

3.5 Main Text

The text of the monograph follows the detailed outline. The outline consists of chapters, sections, and subsections. The paragraphs within these divisions are numbered consecutively throughout the monograph. Proper numbering of paragraphs is important because the index refers to paragraph numbers instead of page numbers.

The following system is used for numbering the headings:

Level 1: General Introduction, Part I, Part II, etc.

Level 2: Chapter 1, Chapter 2, etc.

Level 3: §1, §2, §3, etc.

Level 4: I, II, III, etc.

Level 5: A, B, C, etc.

Level 6: 1, 2, 3, etc.

Level 7: a, b, c, etc.

Authors often ask how many pages to include in a monograph. There is no precise page requirement because the length of a monograph depends on the subject and on the relevant country. The average monograph length should yield between 100 and 250 pages (approx. 400 words per page). If the monograph manuscript is more than 250 pages, please contact the General Editor at iel@kuleuven.be. Please note that the contract specifies that payment will be made for a maximum of 250 pages.

3.5.1 General Introduction

The main text of a national monograph always begins with a General Introduction. The General Background is one part of this introduction in which some general information is given about the country, its population and geography, and its legal system.

3.6 Selected Bibliography

A Selected Bibliography is printed at the end of the monograph before the Index. This bibliography should contain the most relevant books and articles that are important for further reading. It should be a selected bibliography, not an exhaustive list of all works available in the field of law. The preferred bibliography is one in which all entries are divided in books and articles and, if necessary, subdivided by publication language. Please bear in mind that the monograph is for the international audience, and as such, should mainly contain bibliographic information in English. The entries follow KLI House Style and are arranged alphabetically by the primary author's last name.

4. Preparing a Manuscript

When preparing a manuscript for the International Encyclopaedia of Laws, the contribution of individual authors is only one element of a whole set, for which special rules and conventions apply. Special care should be given with regard to consistency and uniformity in order to ensure that the reader has easy access and reference to the information presented in the Encyclopaedia. If each monograph in the International Encyclopaedia of Laws has the same format and the same treatment of such details as punctuation, citations, footnote placement, cross-references, and so forth, the reader knows what to expect and can easily find needed information. Thus, the author is expected to submit the manuscript according to the guidelines explained here.

For an overview of the preferred matters of style (spelling, quotations, lists, tables and figures) please see the KLI House Style Guide.

Some additional matters that are specific to the IELs:

4.1 Numbered Paragraphs

All major paragraphs must be numbered with consecutive Arabic numerals. Separate paragraphs from one another with either a blank line or an indented paragraph.

4.2 Headings

Follow the heading numbers listed in the detailed outline of the Encyclopaedia. Headings should be clearly recognizable as such in your manuscript.

4.3 Footnotes

It is the author's responsibility to make sure all footnote cross-references are correct.

Use the Footnote function in Word to make footnotes using Arabic numerals. Footnote numbers should be placed outside all punctuation marks. Follow KLI House Style for citing books, articles and other reference material.

4.4. Citations

The author is responsible for the content and correct format of all citations in the manuscript.

5. Submitting the Manuscript

5.1 Due Date

As a general rule, the author receives one year to write a new monograph. This period may be extended for a maximum of twelve months in exceptional and justified cases.

A first reminder will be sent around the monograph's deadline. If you need more time to complete the monograph, inform us as soon as possible and propose a new, reasonable deadline. After three unanswered reminders, the editors will look for a new author. Exceptions will be made on a case-by-case basis, with the agreement of the relevant editor.

If you are no longer able to write the monograph, tell us and, if possible, suggest someone who can take over.

5.2 Electronic Submission

Manuscripts must be submitted in electronic format.

5.2.1 File Names

Please submit your manuscript in one file if possible. The file name should be: [series title] [underscore] [manuscript title] CivilProcedure_Germany.doc

File names should not contain spaces; they should only use letters (a-z, A-Z), numbers (0-9), hyphens (-), and the underscore (_).

5.3 Submission Checklist

Before submission, the manuscript should be checked in detail for errors, both typographical and substantive.

In general, the function of our volume editors is to check whether the general content seems logical, and the function of the copy-editors is to check for compliance to house style. Neither will be checking the text line by line for textual errors or mistakes pertaining to specific content. It is the author's responsibility to check that the content of the manuscript is factually and grammatically correct before delivering or approving the final version.

The below checklist helps to ensure that you cover all relevant areas when checking your manuscript before final submission to the IEL Secretariat. KLI must have your signed contract on file before you submit your manuscript. It is critical that you deliver your manuscript in the best possible condition to avoid publication delays.

Check your manuscript in detail for any typos or substantive errors. This should be done by carefully reading a printout of your manuscript; some errors may go unnoticed when reading the text on-screen. If possible, ask a second person to read the text as well.

- Spell-check your manuscript before submitting it, making sure to follow the Oxford-z spelling rules.
- Check that the TOC is consistent with the detailed outline for the series.
- Make sure that the text is absolutely consistent in terms of the style points in the KLI House Style Guide, including numbered paragraphs and footnotes.
- Make sure that the manuscript file is the final version, containing all changes made in the process of writing and revision. Please keep a personal back-up copy of this final version.
- Check that all elements of the manuscript are present:
  - title page;
  - author bio;
  - author photo;
  - table of contents;

- list of abbreviations;
- main text; and
- index.
- Send email address for the proofs.
- List of any special fonts, if any, used in the manuscript.
- Submit written permission to use copyrighted material along with your manuscript, where necessary.

The documents should be submitted by email to Ms. Margot Leysen at iel@kuleuven.be.

5.4 Copyright

The copyright for your monograph will be established in the name of Kluwer Law International (unless otherwise agreed). Submission of a manuscript implies that the copyright will move from the author to the publisher. You will also be asked to sign a contract for the publication of the monograph.

6. From Submission to Publication

The manuscripts with your contributions for the International Encyclopaedia of Laws are requested and received with the understanding that they are final manuscripts and that they have been carefully checked and reviewed. They should not have been accepted or be under consideration for publication elsewhere.

6.1 Contract Phase

The contract phase must be complete before you submit your manuscript. After accepting an invitation to write a monograph, please let the IEL Secretariat at iel@kuleuven.be know what a feasible deadline would be to submit the monograph. The publisher will then send a standard IEL contract to the author via AdobeSign. The contract must be electronically signed within two weeks of receipt, it will be countersigned by the publisher. We cannot publish your monograph without a signed contract.

6.2 Manuscript Reviewed

After your manuscript is submitted to the IEL Secretariat, it will be reviewed by the Volume Editor for content and level of English. At this point, the editor may return your manuscript to you for revision or accept your manuscript. If your manuscript is returned, you will receive specific information about what to revise and when to resubmit the manuscript.

6.2.1 Translation

We only accept texts written in English. Texts in other languages will not be translated or published by the publisher.

6.3 Manuscript Copyedited

If your manuscript is accepted, it will be sent to KLI for review. KLI will send your manuscript to a legal editing vendor to be copyedited according to KLI House Style

You will receive an email notification when the manuscript editor begins copyediting your manuscript. This email will also mention an initial proof schedule.

6.4 Proof Created

After the manuscript has been copyedited, you will have a final chance to look at the monograph and make any necessary small changes. You will receive a notification about the proof schedule. You will have five working days to review the proof. If you think you will not be able to review the proof according to the schedule, please notify the manuscript editor immediately and discuss a new proof schedule.

At the appointed time the vendor (NewGen) will send the final copy-edited Word file (with track changes) back to the Author in the PublishOne tool.

You will be asked to confirm receipt of the proof and return proof corrections within five working days of receiving the proof. If you will not be able to meet the deadline, contact the manuscript editor immediately.

If you do not confirm receipt of the proof and do not return proof corrections, the manuscript editor will assume that the proof has been accepted and will proceed with the publication process.

The Author reviews the final version of the manuscript and has a last opportunity for additions, deletions or corrections. Only the copy-edited Word file in PublishOne can be used to insert corrections.

The final Word file must be submitted to the vendor (NewGen) in PublishOne within the time indicated in the production schedule. This final, approved manuscript will be typeset without any further editing.

Once you have returned the corrected proofs, your corrections will be reviewed for clarity and relevance. KLI reserves the right not to make all of the changes the author requests if the corrections are deemed unsubstantial. The manuscript editor will contact you if several corrections are rejected.

Once the proof is final, it will be finalized and published for the Encyclopaedias on KluwerLawOnline.com/AllEncyclopedias.

7. Updating Your Monograph

In order to have a reliable and accurate reference work, annual updates are necessary. As a primarily online publication (and looseleaf in print), the Encyclopaedias are ideally suited for updating. Extra pages can be created and additional material can be incorporated, although, as far as additions are concerned, this should be an exception rather than a rule. Updates to the Encyclopaedias should consist of revised material and not of additional new material except, of course, when common sense dictates otherwise or new information is requested by the Series Editor.

If the monograph is still current and no additional information is required, the Author should notify the Series Editor or IEL Secretariat at iel@kuleuven.be that the monograph is still up-to-date. Such a notification should occur once every month. In such a case the title page will be amended as follows:

This monograph has been reviewed by the Author and is up-to-date as of [Month Year]

For each update, even one to note that no changes are necessary, you always receive a minimum payment of 100 EUR.

To ensure timely updates, we have a system in place that will send automatic reminders to remind you of the yearly update of your monograph. It will of course always be possible to set a different deadline that works better for you, and Margot Leysen will be copied in all emails and will still be available to answer any specific questions that you may have via iel@kuleuven.be. As soon as your previous update has been finalized, your word-file will be available for you in the PublishOne system again, so it's not necessary to wait for the system's reminders, you can start your next update at any time. The system will send 3 reminders:

1. Six months after the previous update was published with a suggested deadline 6 months later. This is just a reminder that your word-file is available in the system should you want to start working on the next update already.
2. Three months before the suggested deadline. At this point you are asked to confirm the suggested deadline, suggest a new deadline or indicate that no changes are necessary this year.
3. One month before the confirmed deadline. This is just a kind reminder to check if you're on track. At this point you can also indicate that you need more time or that no changes are necessary.

You will receive additional reminders only if you do not confirm a deadline or if the deadline has passed. You will also receive notifications if/when the editors have any questions or comments.

Instructions for using PublishOne can be found here. If you need any support with the system you can contact: P1\_adminsupport@newgen.co

Once the monograph is ready, you submit it "to Editor" so that the editor can review the update.

8. Payment

After the finalization of your monograph, you will receive an email regarding your payment. You will be paid for your work in accordance with the terms of your contract.
